

Congratulations! You've just made your first basket. What's more, with the technical skills you've learned in the process, you can make literally hundreds of different baskets, trays, and bowls simply by shaping the coils differently as you stitch them together.

Other variations and embellishments are possible, of course: adding lids and handles, creating basket centers made with materials other than pine needles, using dyed needles or needles with their caps on, and embellishing your baskets with nuts and other small objects.
